It is with joy and gratitude I express support and a 5 star recommendation for Pamela D. Wilson.

For the past 2 years, Pamela has graciously been a speaker at our Transition Living Real Estate Team™ events. The vision with the events is to help people learn how to navigate life's unexpected changes as they transition in life.

The events include a diverse mix of real estate professionals, ancillary businesses, who are part of the Transition Living Network™ and consumers who are transitioning between different life stages. As a real estate professional I work with many elderly clients and their family caregivers. I witness the stress involved in making life changes, including buying and selling homes and have made it my mission to provide support through educational events in addition to the services offered through my business.

At both events, focusing on the life transitions involved with being a caregiver, Pamela presented information and addressed questions from the audience. She is personable and uses humor and real-life situations to put an audience who may be uncomfortable sharing information or asking questions at ease.

Pamela's professionalism, experience, and high level of ethics show in her interactions with others. I highly recommend Pamela as a speaker for any consumer or professional event for which her expertise and background will benefit your audience.

Sincerely,
